2.3.- LAS REDES ALIMENTARIAS

Las cadenas alimentarias no son independientes unas de otras, un mismo eslabón puede pertenecer a diferentes cadenas. Las relaciones entre las distintas cadenas alimentarias se denominan: REDES ALIMENTARIAS

After that, both the autotrophic organisms and the heterotrophic organisms and their remains are transformed by microorganisms, starting the cycle again. Elements of the experimentation chain in a biological community are: primary and autotrophic producers, which using solar energy (photosynthesis) or mineral chemical reactions (chemosynthesis), obtain the energy necessary to produce organic matter from the inorganic nutrients that take air and earth. Through breathing, both plants and animals exploit energy, but disperse part of it in the form of heat, which passes to the external environment. Sites. In some ecosystems, as in the case of the lawn, the shape of the number of numbers is equal to the pyramids of energy and biomass. The plants convert the remaining energy into biomass, on the ground such as leaves and herbaceous tissue and under this root. At each level of three terms, organisms convert less energy than they receive. For them, the number of numbers of the forest ecosystem does not resemble a normal pyramid, but here the exceptions are frequent and have to do with the great differences of size between the organisms and with the different times of generation, giving rise to inverted pyramids. In a chain of paragraphs, a small body consumes part of a larger body. Many insects live in the world, but have less energy and biomass. This is because organisms use most of the energy that consume to carry out their vital processes, such as breathing, movement and reproduction. And only one day of that energy, that is 10% of 10%, or 1% in it is transferred to people who eat cow meat. Energy pyramid: In theory, nothing limits the amount of trophic levels that a chain can sustain, however, there is a problem. The plants obtain the energy directly from the sun through photosynthesis. These have always been considered as a threat to human beings, because they directly suffer from their predation or for the competitiveness for hunting resources, and have often been exterminated, often, systematic and taken to extinction in many cases.
